BUILETINS.

Hulletin 1-The conclusion reached last night regarding the election in Kentucky seems to bold good at this time. Returns received give Goebel a plurality of 7,077, but of counties not yet heard from in any thing like a complete way, 10 gave a Democratic majority of 3,562 in 1897 and 19 gave a Republican majority of 10,700. No Reprolican loss. Evidently Taylor is elected. It seems improbable that there will be a Republican loss in missing countles since generally there are depublican gains everywhere.

Bulletin2-Cuyahoga county, Ohio vote on governor as follows: Nash 21,264 McLean 7,414, Jones 44.252. In Hamilton county McLean's plurality is about 1,000. In Frinklin county Nash has 1,758 plurality. Kentucky with complete refurns from 36 counties and incomplete reports from 74, making a total of 110 out of 119 in the state, Goebel has 124,912 votes and Taylor 128,738 and Brown 7680 votes. This leaves Goebel's pluratity in the counties heard from 1174. Of the counties yet to be heard from two in 1897 gave 940 Democratic majority and seven hand and assuming that there will be no kepublican loss in the missing coun-there will be any, Taylor's plura ity will be between 2000 and 3000. Many counties went Republican

Adopted by a Kentucky Madstone

The sticking qualities of the mad stone are illustrated in the family of Mr. George Ketcham, a merchant out at the cross-roads. Last summer John-nie, a 14-year-old son of Mr. Ketchem. was bitten by a mad dog. The wound was in the paim of the right hand, and when a small madstone about three inches square was applied it adhered readily; in fact, so much so that ft could never be got loose, and is now thoroughly imbedded in Johnnie's hand. The boy has become accustomed to the situation, and, in fact, finds the stone quite a convenience in many instances. Besides whetting his razor and breaking nuts with it, the stone is a convenient weapon, with which Johnnie makes all the other beys in the neighborhood stand around, Cat. for them.
